

Set between the majestic Batu Karu Mountain and the infinite green of terraced rice fields, on the edge of the ocean where its waves meet the glistening black sands of a volcanic beach, Soori Bali is a hidden refuge that draws strength and serenity from its extraordinary surroundings. Rejuvenating, peaceful and genuine, this is Bali as it should be.

Designed, owned and operated by renowned architect Soo K. Chan and his wife Ling Fu, Soori Bali's award-winning architecture puts environmental and cultural sustainability at the center of its philosophy. Crafted out of stone from nearby village quarries, positioned with respect of ancestral ritual pathways running through its grounds, and adorned with terracotta and ceramic ornaments from local artisans, the resort maintains a true sense of place.

Keeping things pure and close to the root, Soori Bali's chefs use fresh produce supplied from century-old farms, with herbs and spices grown in its own garden.

The resort's spa and wellness facilities, too, provide a wide range of holistic treatments using only highest-quality, organic ingredients. All 45 villas and residences feature private pools with sweeping vistas that allow for an intimate encounter with the surrounding landscape. Remote yet accessible, Soori Bali is a short ride away from the legendary Tanah Lot Temple, one of the island's most cherished sites, and within easy reach of an 18-hole championship golf course, making it a perfect getaway spot for those who seek to delight in spiritual or recreational activities. From sunset horse rides on the beach and quiet strolls through the rice paddies, to sumptuous celebratory feasts and private helicopter rides, we instinctively create experiences filled with unforgettable discovery, tailor-made to suit our guests' wishes.

There are few places that revere nature's gifts like we do, and absolute discretion for our guests is the pattern of our craft. Soori Bali is an amazing place to be, naturally.
